

Rabbits

edHelper.com

A rabbit is a mammal that's found almost everywhere.

It's often mistaken for its cousin, the hare.

Although the hare and rabbit look almost the same,

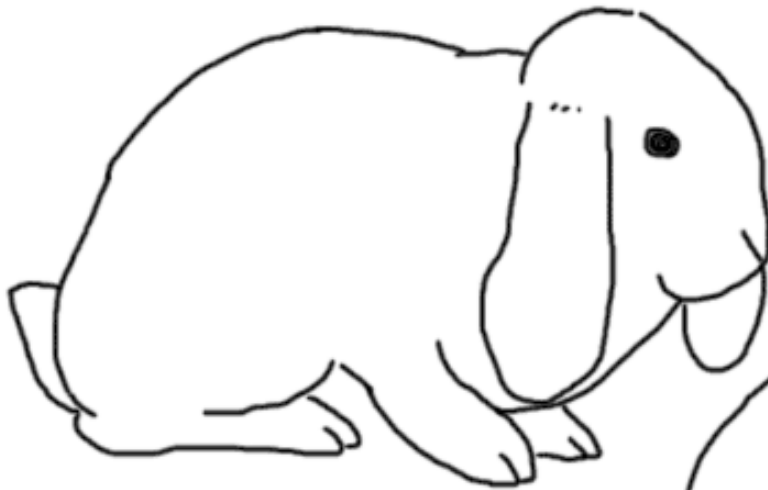

There is still a difference, and it's not just the name.

Rabbit Burrow

Hare Nest

A rabbit's new babies are born with no hair,
But a hare has a baby with all its hair there.
A rabbit lives in a burrow under the ground.
In a nest above the ground is where the hare is found.

lop-eared

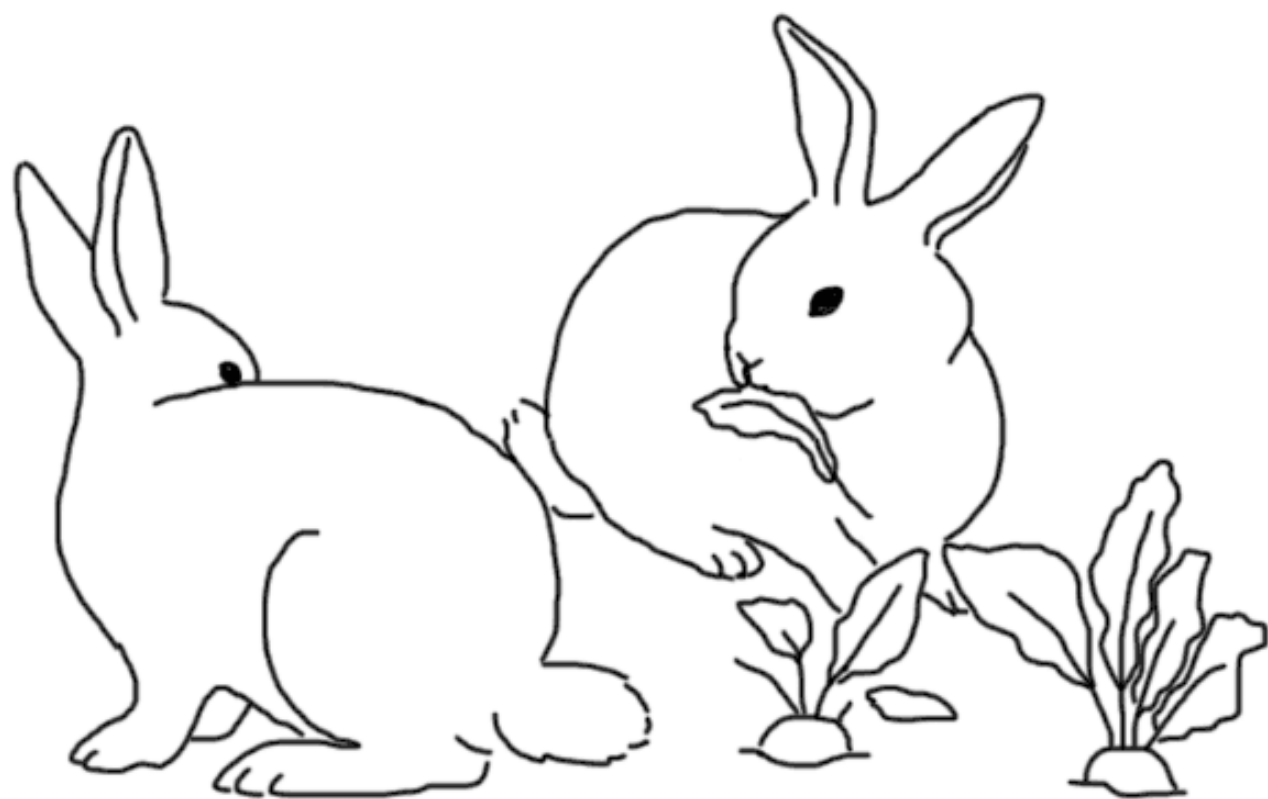

Californian

Rabbits are often kept as someone's pet.

There are all kinds of rabbits that you can get.

There are lop-eared rabbits and angora rabbits, too.

There's the Californian rabbit, to name just a few.

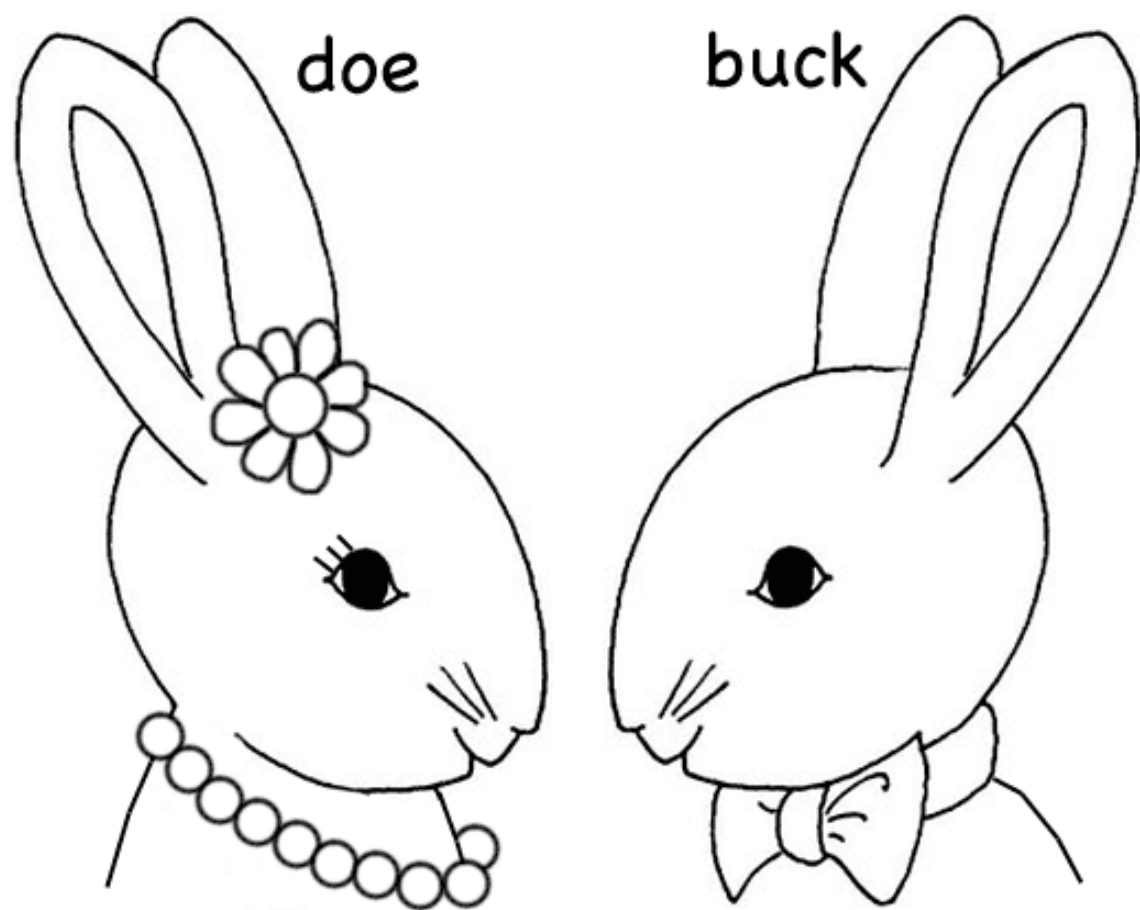

A rabbit will eat nearly every vegetable in sight.

Rabbits like to hunt for food in the dark of night.

If you've planted in your garden a row of red beets,

A rabbit will eat off all their tops.
They are special treats.

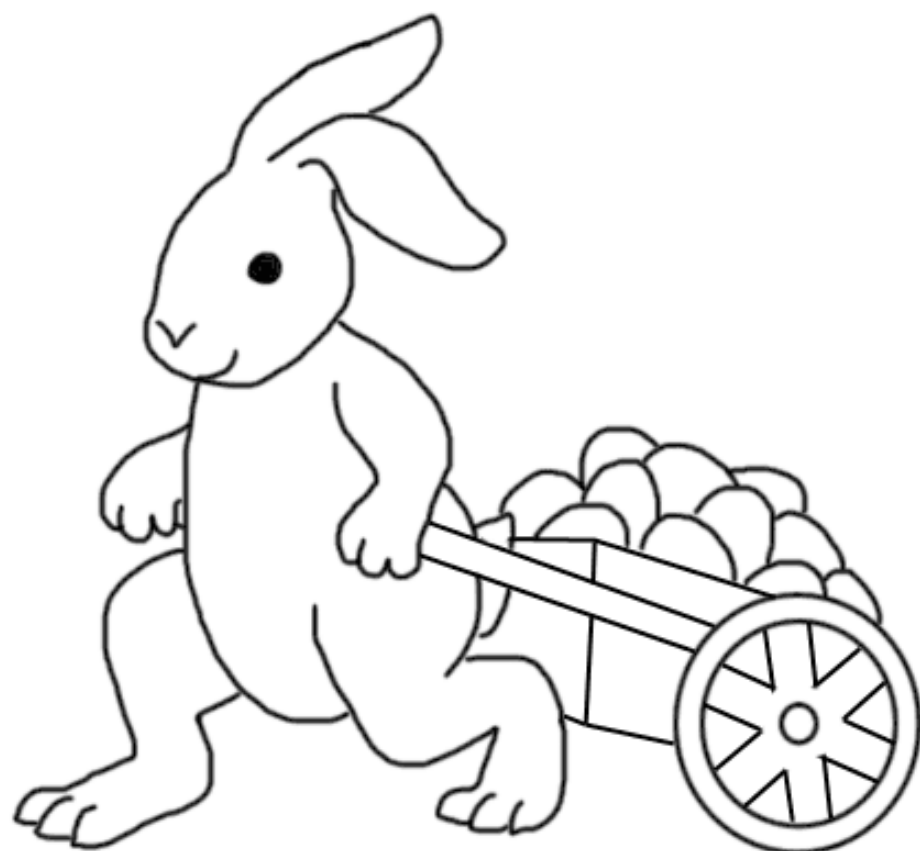

A male rabbit's a buck, and a female is a doe.

When rabbits are scared, down the rabbit hole they go.

Wild rabbits live in burrows, or a house that's underground.

Their home is called a warren.

That's where rabbits are found.

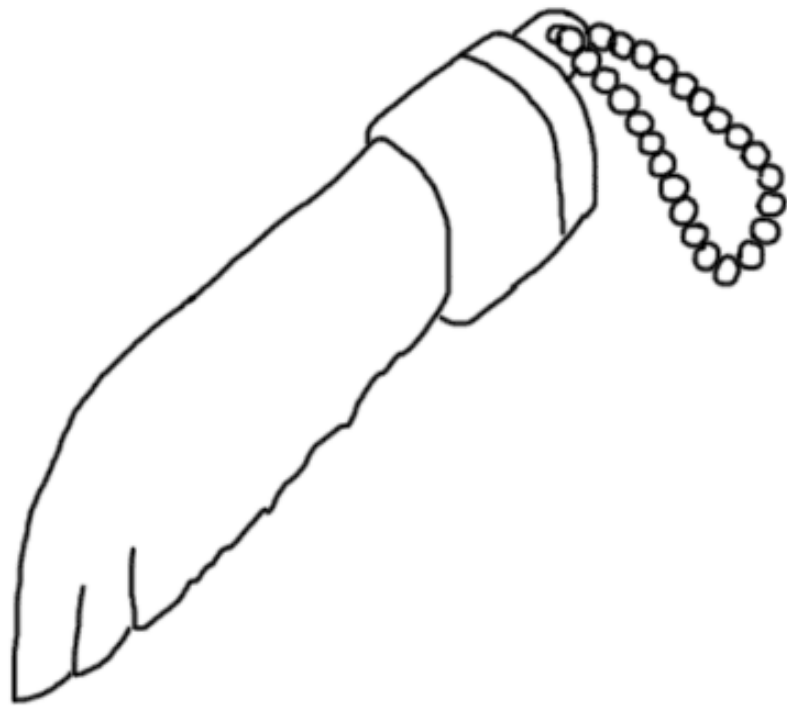

In the Chinese Zodiac, rabbits are the fourth sign.

People born in the Year of the Rabbit are quiet and refined.

Rabbits are also used as symbols in the good old USA,

When the Easter Bunny comes a-hopping on Easter day.

Lucky Rabbit Foot

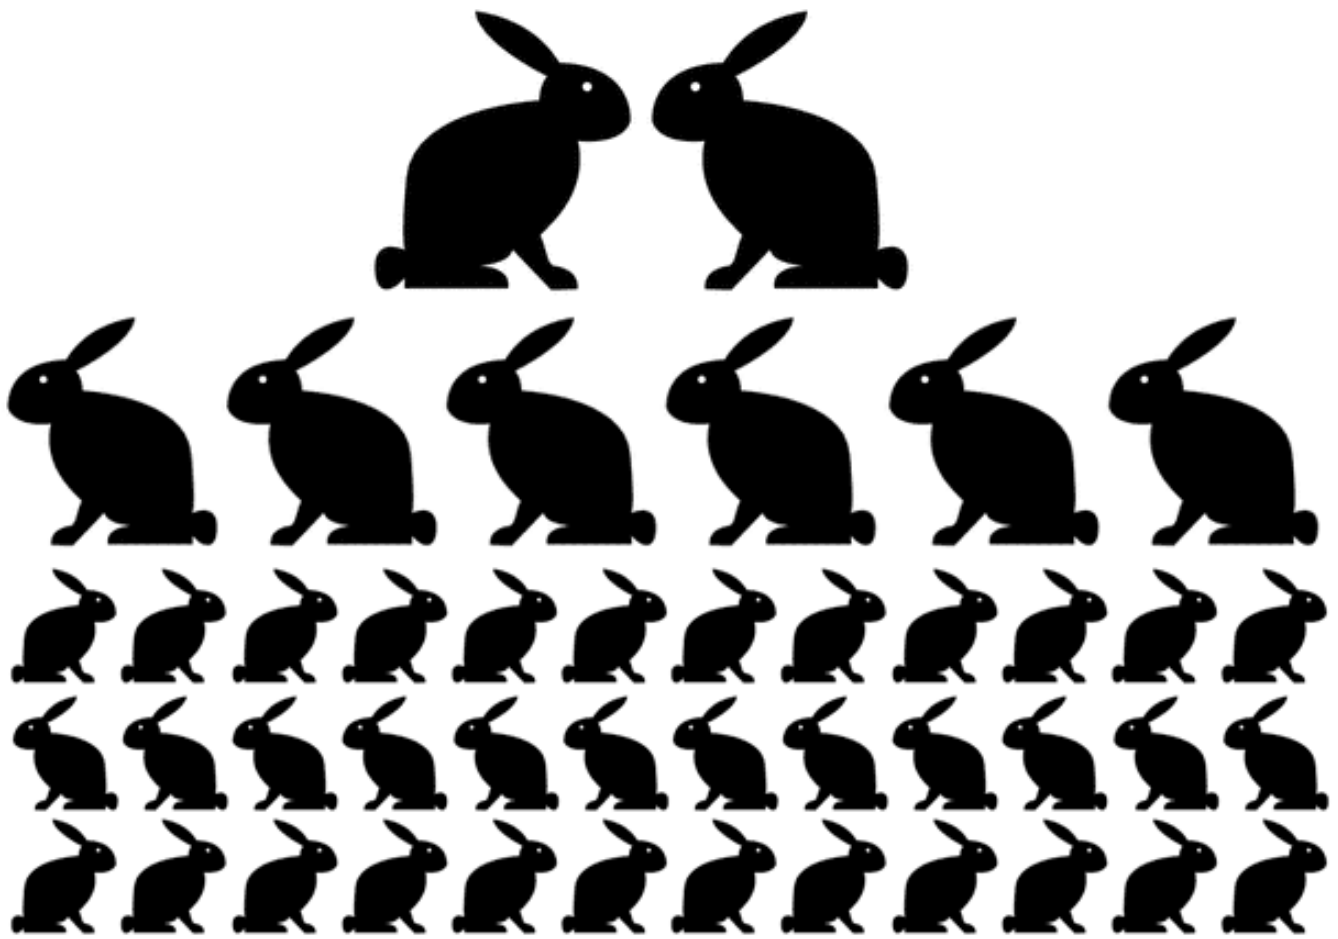

The rabbit is a symbol for other things, too.

A rabbit's foot is supposed to bring good luck to you.

The rabbit is a trickster in some stories that are told,

Like Bre'r Rabbit in Uncle Remus, a story that is old.
